COLUMNTalk of Battle With White Is Welsh's Stall to Avoid Meeting With Ritchie.Copyright, 1915, by The Press Publishing Co.

HERE'S a lot of talk, largely coming from the camp of lightweight champion Freddy Welsh, about a possible twenty-round match with Charlie White. In fact Freddy's followers seem rather fond of talking about matching Freddy with White. They say it should be "a good card" because White fought so well against Freddy at Brighton Beach.

In this the Welsh people emulate the thoughtful squid, which, disturbed by the presence of a dangerous enemy, squirts out a lot of ink matter and is hidden in a cloud of its own making.

The ink matter ejected by the lightweight champion's party is intended to hide him from Willie Ritchie and to make the public forget that Ritchie is still on Welsh's trail.

The facts in the case are just these: White outfought Welsh, had him shaken up pretty well a couple of times, and looked a possible winner in a long fight.

But Welsh made a show of White in the first round, at times hitting him whenever he pleased, Charles being too slow to nail him before he could get away, and not aggressive enough to keep him on the run. Ritchie outfigured Welsh from the start of the first round, chased him without a second's rest, forced him to run or clinch all the time, and had him in such shape at the end of the tenth that it looked a sure thing Welsh would have been unable to go two rounds more.

Welsh didn't make a show of Ritchie at any time. He didn't even try to stand and fight as he did with White. And why? Simply because Ritchie fought him off his feet and after him so badly that he couldn't run or be knocked out. Welsh wasn't able to stand up to Ritchie at all. He tried it once, in the last round, to make him his customary decision but "finiah." And Ritchie swept him out of the way and had him running for his life in about two seconds. Ritchie was too fast and too aggressive to be held off.

That was the difference between Welsh's fight with White and his fight with Ritchie.

It furnishes the only reason for talk about a Welsh-White fight for the lightweight championship.

That "goodness gracious me!" as Jack O'Brien used to say when informed of using strong language, why had I not thought of this? It's something to hear that he's even considering a decision fight AT ALL!

TACK JOHNSON, in England, is being interviewed quite as extensively as when he was champion. When asked by a London writer who would have the best chance to beat Willard, not drawing a color line in his selection, he replied that he'd pick Frank Moran for the job. Which shows that Johnson is still a diplomat. Moran is in London, is popular, has won the championship of England from Bombardier Wells, and might possibly draw a big house with Johnson if Johnson cared to fight again. Incidentally, judging from the Johnson-Moran fight in Paris, Frank wouldn't cause the diplomatic Jack a bad deal of trouble.

As for anyone's beating Willard—nobody now in sight is going to beat Willard unless Jess drinks or in some other way dissipates away his fighting ability. Having the confidence that goes with holding a title, he's going to be a mighty hard man to beat.

As for Willard's losing out through dissipation, there's little chance of it. The tale that big Jess is a stomach of the demon rum is all poppycock. Jess takes a drink when he wishes, and his massive frame and splendid water he drinks plain whiskey. He learned to drink when he was a cowboy, before he ever became a champion. One of his favorite stories is of the days when he used to play poker and each man in the game started with a full bottle and stayed until it was empty.

But Willard's indulgence in strong liquors is only occasional. It's not a habit with him, and unless the constant temptation thrust before a champion chance him entirely he's not likely to drink enough to have any effect in the next few years. In his present fine, clean condition, and with his massive frame and splendid constitution, it would take years of real dissipation to bring him down where any ordinary heavyweight would have a chance to even worry him.

The fact that Willard occasionally drinks and is still champion of the world, should not be taken as an excuse for drinking. Whiskey, even taken in moderation will ruin any athlete in course of time and any man of ordinary physique much more quickly.

Evenly Matched Field of Eleven
To Start in Historic Suburban

Turf's Blue Ribbon Event Is to Be Revived To-Day at Belmont Park—Champion Roamer Has Refused the Issue.

By Vincent Treanor.

The Suburban Handicap, the erstwhile blue ribbon event of the American turf, is revived to-day at Belmont Park under the auspices of the Empire City Racing Association. As a turf classic no event exceeds it in importance. Up to last year it has been a battle of champions, and despite the absence of the great Roamer from this afternoon's field, the 1915 struggle for the $5,000 added money should go down in history as one of the most spirited contests that has ever marked the running of the annual feature.

Never has a better nor more evenly matched lot been named to face the barrier. There have been more valuable Suburbans in the past from a monetary standpoint, but none which brought together such well-matched horses. A casual look at the eleven entries and the probable winner is up in the air as to speak. As official handicapper Vosburgh has allotted the weights after a careful analysis of what each horse has done in public, every starter seems to have a chance.

VOSBURGH WEIGHTS EQUALIZES THINGS IN BIG RACE.

Sometimes the handicapper is fooled, but rarely. His job is to assign weights that will equalize things in handicap fields, and apparently he has done so to-day, if one can overlook the light impost on Tartar, who already has won the Long Beach Handicap and the Brooklyn Handicap. Tartar beat Roamer at a difference of twenty-two pounds and had twenty-five on Barrow, who ran third the same day. To-day Mr. Vosburgh has added two pounds off Barrow and additive to Tartar, in an attempt to bring both closer together. Tartar is only a little heavier and does his best only under light weight, but Roamer is a little horse, too, still Mr. Vosburgh has never shown such consideration for his size. The race from a handicapping standpoint is treated elsewhere, along with the other events that make up the opening day's programme and it wasn't meant to go into a further treatise of the subject here.

40,000 USED TO MAKE SUBURBAN A HOLIDAY.

Run for years at old Sheepshead, which is now being converted in an automobile racing plant, the Suburban has always been a big attraction. Forty thousand was an ordinary Suburban Day turnout and this crowd made the event a holiday in the sporting world. To-day, although racing is not quite steady on its feet, a gathering of at least 15,000 is expected to see the race run at Belmont. The horses will run the reverse way as has been the custom at Belmont Park ever since its opening, but this isn't likely to interfere with the candidates for the majority of them have been prepared over the course.

All the nominees for the big race were on edge this morning. Each was given a breather and a cooling out, and returned to his stall to await the trip to the tree-shaded paddock about half an hour before race time. All the trainers expressed confidence in their respective charges, and there was not one of the eleven represented who did not think he had a chance of winning. A Suburban victory enhances a horse's value and means fame and glory for the owner, trainer and jockey concerned. It is a coveted prize that may not be won once in a life time of effort.

Starters in Big Handicap.

Horse.	Weight.	Jockey.	Handicap.	Probable Odds.
Stromboli	122	Butwell	100	2 to 1
Borrow	126	Notter	99	2 to 1
Tartar	108	J. McTaggart	98	4 to 1
Sam Jackson	100	McDermott	97	15 to 1
Addie M.	103	McCabe	96	8 to 1
Gainger	114	Keogh	95	10 to 1
Holmes	104	Buxton	94	8 to 1
Ruckhorse	117	Horel	93	10 to 1
Norse King	108	T. McTaggart	92	12 to 1
Sharpshooter	108		91	10 to 1
Top Hat	95		90	2 to 1

Stromboli figures to win the handicap. There is no Roamer here to race him off his feet. He has run some cracking good races under staker weight this season. Borrow, with Notter up, is the contender, and the one winner must beat Tartar. He is dangerous but likes lighter weight. He should be third at least. Sam Jackson is "tossed in" at the weights. If as good as he was as a four-year-old he would have a decided look in. His last race was very impressive. Addie M. is in light enough and may go better than rated, but if her racing was her real form she has no chance here. Holde, highly regarded in the West, never beat a field of this kind. A long shot outside with a chance is Gainger. He ranked with the best of them as a three-year-old. He is in at a nice weight here.

FISTIC NEWS AND GOSSIP

By John Pollock

Tom Cowler, the heavyweight of Vancouver, B. C., who is under the management of Jim McFadden, who has fought nearly all the top heavyweights in the world, is expected to fight on the night of July 26. He will go against Gus Smith, the California fighter, for ten rounds at the St. Nicholas Hotel A. C. show, Jimmy McFadden, matchmaker of the club, having signed the fighters after their managers, Corbett and Jim Bunkley, had accepted his terms. Corbett will superintend Cowler's training and also box with him every day.

Another California fighter will make his first appearance in a contest in New York tonight. He is Joe Azevedo, who has fought nearly all the top heavyweights in the world, is expected to fight on the night of July 26. He will go against Gus Smith, the California fighter, for ten rounds at the St. Nicholas Hotel A. C. show, Jimmy McFadden, matchmaker of the club, having signed the fighters after their managers, Corbett and Jim Bunkley, had accepted his terms. Corbett will superintend Cowler's training and also box with him every day.

John Dunn, manager of Al McCoy, the middleweight champion, today received an offer of a guarantee of $700 for McCoy to fight Frank Farmer, the middleweight of Chicago, Wis., in a ten-round bout in the latter city on the night of Aug. 10. Dunn has declined the offer, for he says he can get more money for McCoy at the local club.

The ten-round bout between Joe Walling, the Chicago lightweight, and Phil Bloom of Brooklyn, which was billed for the show at the Brighton Beach A. C. on next Saturday night, has fallen through. Larry Lichstein, who handles Walling, wrote Harry Pollock that Walling would not be able to meet Bloom, as he was leaving for Europe.

The ten-round bout between Charlie "Young" Weiler of Newark and Jim Savage of Orange, N. J., will be decided in Madison Square Garden on Tuesday night at his club on next Tuesday. The bout will be a three-round affair, with Weiler to get into shape for the contest.

Al Reich, the local heavyweight, will take a rest for a few weeks and will then be ready to meet any of the big fellows. Maxey Blumenthal, his manager, claims that Reich fought with a broken hand after the fourth round, which prevented him from putting Jim Savage away. Blumenthal will try hard to induce Savage to fight Reich a return battle.

Doesn't Look
As if Feds Will Quit Newark

TRENTON, N. J., July 14.—The Newark Federal League Baseball Club filed articles of incorporation to-day with the Secretary of State at the Capital here. The incorporators named are P. T. Powers, Jersey City; Harry J. Sinclair and Oscar M. Gerstung, Tulsa, Oklahoma. Powers is named as the agent of the club, which is authorized by its charter to issue stock to the extent of $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of the par value of $100.

The incorporation of the Newark "Feds" is interesting in view of the recent talk of their owners' intention not to continue playing at home during the remainder of the present season because of poor patronage.

Tellier Beats
Golf Record
By 7 Strokes

Reports were received last night of a sensational round of golf by Louis Tellier on Sunday over the links of Canoe Brook Country Club. Tellier went out in 31 and back in 32, cutting the record by seven strokes. The distance of the links is 5,527 yards.

The distances, par and Tellier's record are as follows:

WHITE GETS DRAW
WITH MILBURN SAYLOR.

BOSTON, July 14.—Milburn Saylor, the Indianapolis lightweight, was robbed of a well-earned victory over Charley White of Chicago in their twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. last night, when Referee Billy Roche declared the contest a draw.

When Roche announced his decision there was a howl from the fans. Roche said after the bout that he based his decision on the knockdowns by White, but he really only scored one. In one of the early rounds, while milling at close range, White wreathed Saylor down. The best that any of the fans gave White was one round, the sixth, when he sent Saylor to the floor with a left hook to the jaw. Three of the other rounds were even and Saylor was entitled to the honor in the other eight.
